LUV ADDING LV FLIGHTS

There is some good news for air flight-dependent Las Vegas, Southwest Airlines, which operates more flights at McCarran International Airport than any other airline, is adding flights, though the company has not said how many or to where, the Las Vegas Review-Journal reported.

That is good news given that passenger counts plummeted 96.4 percent to 152,716 in April due to COVID-19, and there weren't any international passengers.

Meanwhile, casino operator Derek Stevens is doing his part to get customers in the air.

All 2,000 seats have been booked in Stevens' flight giveaway.

Stevens originally offered 1,000 flights but doubled that after the initial offer was booked within two hours.

Stevens says his promotion is intended to stimulate tourism and airline industries and support travel to Las Vegas.

WARNING: AC CASINOS COULD CLOSE

One or more Atlantic City casinos could close for good if the casinos can't open by Fourth of July weekend, Atlantic County Democratic Chair Michael Suleiman said.

Suleiman is asking New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy to get the labor unions involved and create a reopening plan for the casinos, the New Jersey Globe reported.
