

Konami Gaming's Danielle Rankin is Recognized in the "Emerging Leaders of Gaming 40 Under 40"

Strong figure within Konami's SYNKROS team is among the industry's next generation of leaders

Las Vegas, NV — October 10, 2019

Konami Gaming, Inc. formally congratulates Director of Business Development Danielle Rankin as one of this year's "Emerging Leaders of Gaming 40 Under 40". She has been recognized by Global Gaming Business magazine and The Innovation Group (TIG) as one of the most significantly impactful gaming industry professionals under the age of 40. Rankin is instrumental in bringing new systems technology to casino operators and players through Konami's award-winning SYNKROS® casino management system.

"Danielle Rankin has made exceptional contributions to the success of Konami, its customers, and the larger industry through her partnership commitment and innovative outlook," said Tom Jingoli, executive vice president & chief commercial officer at Konami Gaming, Inc. "Her strong technical expertise and casino operations experience give her an incredible ability to work collaboratively with our SYNKROS customers to bring leading-edge innovation to the gaming floor."

Rankin has been at Konami for more than seven years, rising through the ranks from senior business operations analyst to become its director of business development in 2017. Her experience in gaming spans more than 13 years, specializing in areas including analytics, marketing, retail, database management, and operations. Danielle Rankin will be honored during the 2019 Global Gaming Expo (G2E) Las Vegas this month and appear in the November edition of Global Gaming Business.
