

BMM Testlabs, Above and Beyond at the National Indian Gaming Tradeshow 2019

BMM Testlabs, the world's best gaming testing laboratory and technical consultancy, is pleased to participate in the National Indian Gaming Tradeshow & Convention (NIGA) in San Diego on April 1-4, 2019.

During the show, BMM will highlight celebrated tribal artist, Lisa Schneider who will be signing copies of her work, Walking Wolf. Guests at the BMM booth can meet the artist and receive a signed poster on Wednesday, April 3 from 11am to 1pm.

BMM will also be hosting the American Indian Graduate Center (AIGC) at our booth on Wednesday, April 3 at 11am. AIGC will be presented with a donation check from BMM Testlabs' Next Generation Initiative. AIGC joins a long list of organizations that have been recipients of over $100,000 from BMM's Next Generation Initiative, which has provided support to native youth organizations across Indian country.

Jodi DiLascio, Director Tribal Gaming commented, "BMM Testlabs is proud to extend our support to the AIGC organization allowing them to continue the powerful work they do to place higher education within the reach of our tribal youth."

Angelique Albert, Executive Director for AIGC stated, "American Indian Graduate Center is proud to partner with BMM Testlabs to support the educational aspirations of native students. The generosity of BMM and other partners allow us to play a role in transforming lives through education."

BMM Testlabs' extraordinary participation at NIGA 2019 will also include Peter Nikiper, Director of Technical Compliance. Nikiper is an industry-renowned expert in compliance issues and will be speaking on Network Risk Assessment on Wednesday, April 3 from 3:30pm to 5pm for the Seminar Institute, Commissioner Certification, Level III.
